The Hearst Center Gallery Level contains the exhibition areas, Mae Latta Hall and the Hearst Reading Room. The Mae Latta Hall provides the perfect space and ambience for lectures, films, music, workshops and performances. It can easily be used for small receptions and gatherings. The Hearst Reading Room works well for small informal meetings.

The Hearst Center Classroom & Studio Level contains the Rownd and McElroy classrooms are perfect for birthday parties, art related community groups and small receptions. The Corning Patio transitions the McElroy classroom to the Woodland Sculpture Garden, a one half-acre garden that surrounds the Hearst Center. The Nancy Price Meeting Room is perfect for small group meetings.

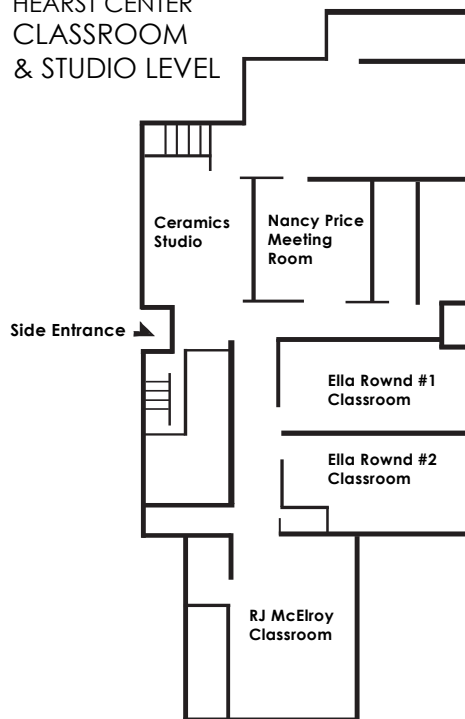

The Hearst also offers themed birthday party packages for a fun twist.

There is a small kitchenette on the gallery level and there are no restrictions on food. Alcoholic beverages allowed include can/bottle beer, wine and champagne. No security guard required. Parking is available in the 22 space parking lot and off-street.
